Future of Democracy in Pak.

Democracy in Pakistan has always remained in Turbulent water. It has under gone tyrannical experiences in Pakistan. It is a country where military ruled for around 35 years out of 78 years of her life. Although, it has always been bruised by anti-democratic forces but the clock has turned after 2008 elections. Democracy is on the road of progress and prosperity these days. Politicians are learning in their Nursery; the parliament. Despite Military influence, corruption, political instability, Religional extremism and nepo-babies; democracy is maturing, slowly and gradually. Mentioned above menaces are curable through ensuring rule of law, controlling military interference in domestic matters, eradicating illiteracy and persuading youth to participate in politics. However, one thing is crystal and clear that democracy is a decided future of Pakistan and there are slim chances of success for anti-democratic hordes.
